Emotional responses to protests and civil unrest can be heightened during COVID-19. Here are some tips to keep you emotional healthy.

Increase support
Your personal history of anxiety, depression, or trauma may put you at higher risk for negative emotions. Increase your support before, during, and after the event.

Manage exposure
Plan for how you will manage the possibility of exposure to violence and the additional emotional toll it may have on you.

Monitor yourself
What emotional factors will be your sign for leaving or seeking support? Pay attention to signs of increased fear, anxiety, or panic.

Plan to engage
Consider the potential need for mental or behavioral health support after an event.

It is okay to reach out for help with your mental health. If you are feeling stressed because of COVID-19, call Washington Listens at 1-833-681-0211.
